

B2B manufacturers: Embrace the online opportunity with your own Marketplace

Enable the digital revolution instead of being swallowed by it

According to Forrester Research, B2B buyers prefer to buy from providers with the largest array of choice. Your distributors increasingly turn to Amazon and Alibaba as efficient sales channels. This exposes your products to a less qualitative environment where the risk of commoditization is real. This also limits the opportunity that digital commerce provides to engage with and learn from your customers.

Narrowly focused attempts at e-commerce will not only fail your customers that expect shopping experiences more in-line with B2C sites, but also cause channel conflict with existing dealers networks. Instead, now is the time to invest in e-commerce that optimizes customer experience without creating channel conflict.

Give customers everything they want and more

The Marketplace model is the best mechanism for providing additional value to your customers while enhancing relationships with channel partners. Your e-commerce efforts can enhance the customer experience by providing value-add services (e.g. product installation) and products in a one-stop shop. At the same time, you avoid channel conflict with dealers by allowing them to set up shop on your Marketplace.

Imagine being able to do all this without increasing your overhead and losing focus on your core business.

→ Volume Discounting

Allow price decreases when goods or materials are purchased in greater numbers.

→ Personalized Pricing

Display prices on the Marketplace according to the individual buyer's profile, enabling detailed customer segmentation.
